Inevitable—

Change

Bewildered,
But not frightened,
We stand between
Tradition and transition.

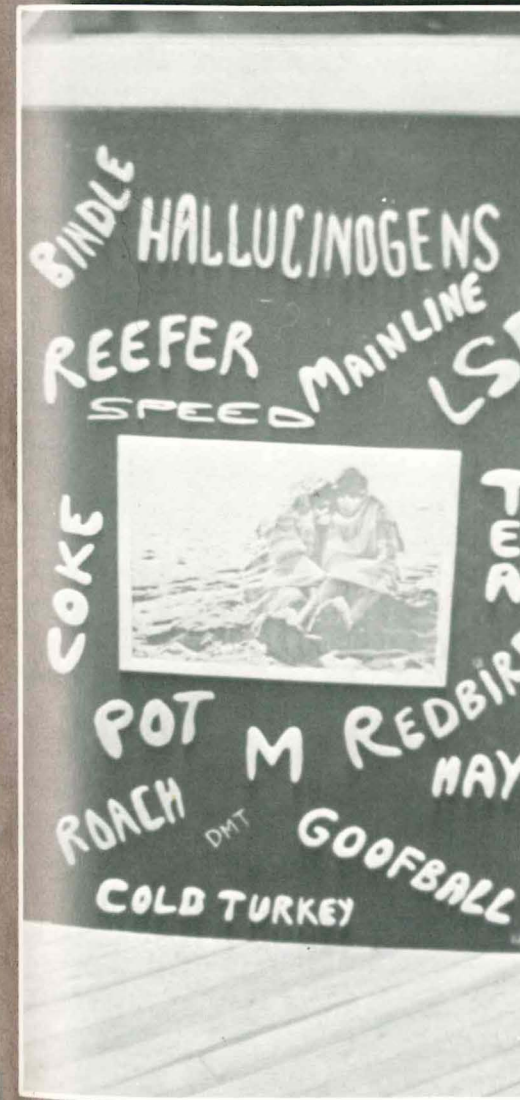

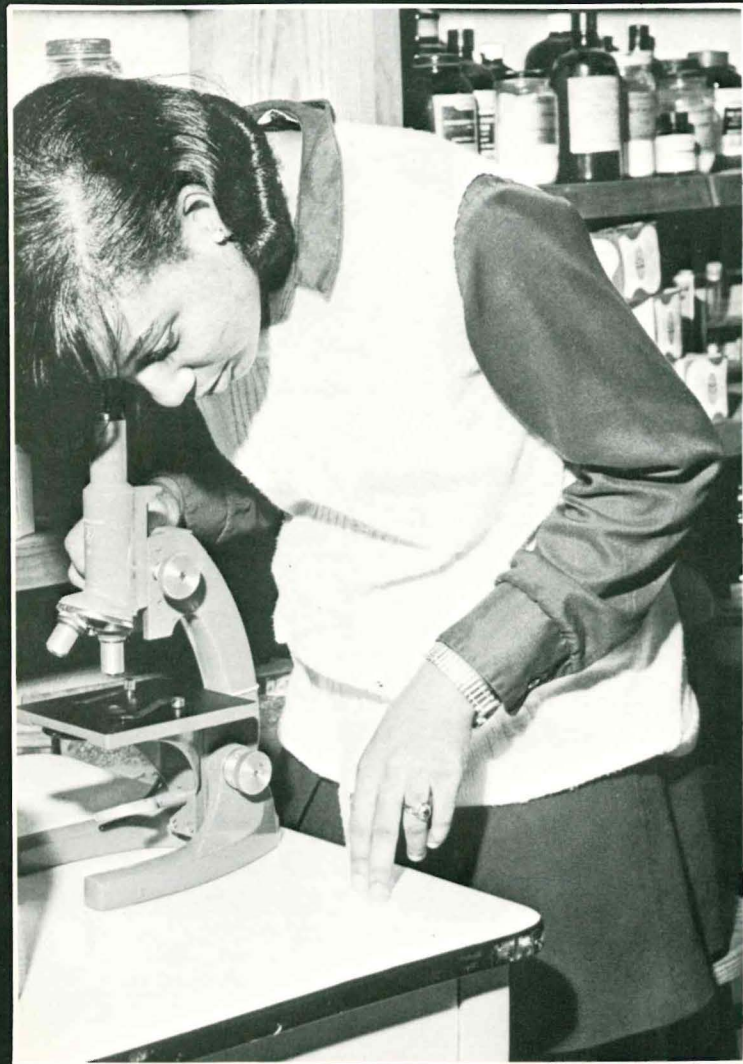

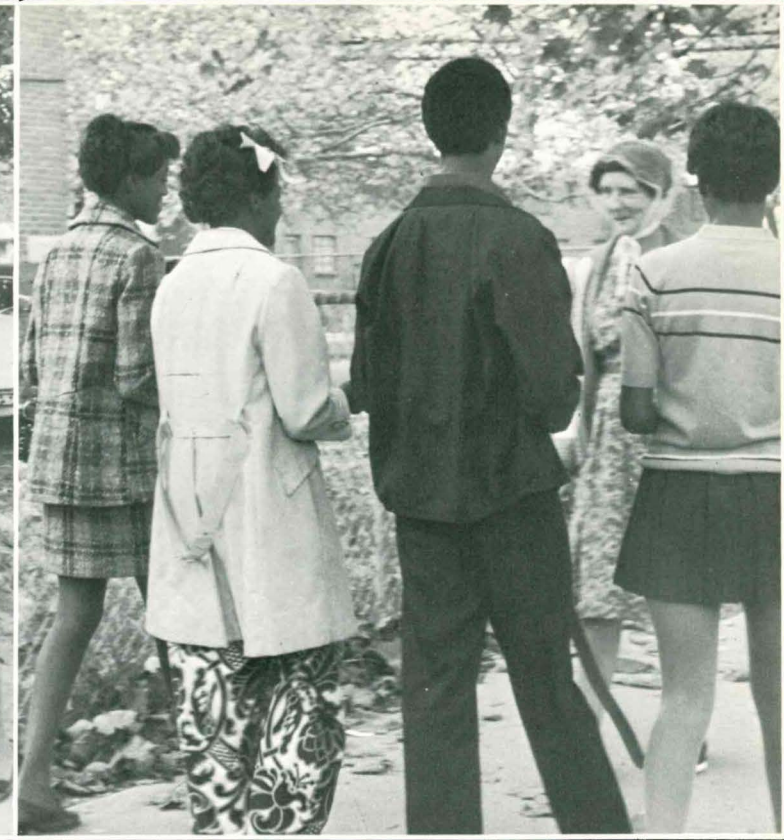

We are,
Look at us,
Listen to us,
Care about us,
For we are the voices
Of the future calling.

We desire to battle the Thicket of
Ignorance, intolerance
Suspicion and complacency
In order to create
A more progressive society.
We desire to search for truth
In our endeavor to serve
Mankind
And to enlighten
A world of darkness.

We must find the Answers,
For only then will
Our performances
Make order out of
The chaos of our lives
And a world that is in part,
"No longer and not yet."

ADMINISTRATION TRADITION TRANSITION ?

Just as EQUATOR in geography means, midway between and hotness so does EQUATOR in reference to our administrators. For in this area of changes, they are confronted with many issues which thrust them midway between deciding whether to base their decisions on traditional or transitional ideology.

They realize that their decisions must be sound, for the issues are the hottest in the world because they are counterparts of national and international problems which involve peace, pollution, dress codes, possible protest, scientific advancements, technological survival, population explosion, the communication gap and the other various destructive vices.

What are they doing about these issues for us, the "Now Generation", who are crying to be heard and pleading to be helped? They are listening to our grievances, becoming involved for our cause, accepting our logical ideologies and making us aware of and nondesireous of unsound wants. They are making possible for us, curricular-wise and extracurricular-wise, a quality education that will help us meet the challenges, and become leaders of propriety in tomorrow's world.

Equators Face Dissent, Conformity

Evolution--revolution--pollution--explosions--war tragedies--racial dissatisfaction and student unrest were some of the woes of 1971.

Once more, as during the infancy of sputnik, the citizenry cried out to the school--"Save our youth and you'll save the country. Find an answer for who should go and when he should go traditional or transitional."

Realizing this, and that educators are considered accountable to the world for the product the school produces, for it determines the destiny of a country, Mr. Ross Hines, principal, has endeavored through his personality, administrative "know how", and power to cope with the student body--a generation whose minds are busting with new morals and ideas never witnessed before by older generations. Daily he has searched for means to give each student an education that would help him find solutions to the vast and devastating problems that face him in the world beyond Huntington's walls, by revising out-dated curriculum, by making possible new courses, providing innovative teaching aids for instructors, and trying to have a well qualified staff and faculty. Along with this, he has tried to listen to our pleas "to be heard" and answered when he found it feasible.

He believes that a desire for change is natural and it is not the yielding to change that spells a "break down" in the establishment but one's yielding without a logical point of view or a logical method of attack.

Mr. Hines has conference with Mrs. Smith, a newly hired science instructor from Texas.

and Nonconformity with . . .

Fulfilling his first year as assistant principal, Mr. Michael Lambiotte has already demonstrated his worthiness as a member of the Huntington High School Family. Ever concerned with the problems confronting members of the student body, he has endeared himself to them greatly. Never is he too busy to listen to a problem and offer a solution.

A pillar in the foundation of Huntington High School, Mr. Clarence C. Johnson, with vigor and vitality, performs his duties as assistant principal well. His duties center around areas of instruction and scholarship. He is known as being a strong disciplinarian. Yet with this firmness, he has coupled encouragement, and is ever eager to instill within the student body a desire to achieve greater heights of academic excellence.

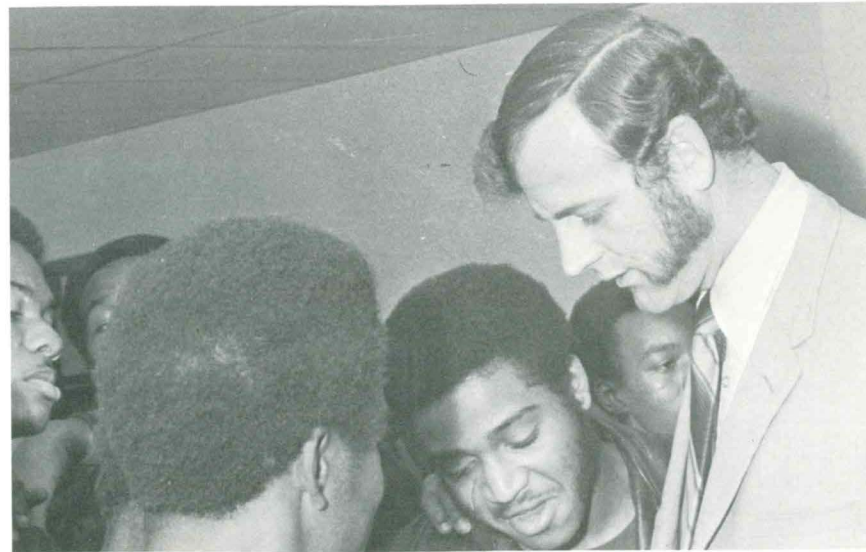

The administration of Huntington High School has viewed student life in a more liberal perspective. Mr. Algie Pitchford recognizes the social and economic changes in America's educational institutions. Mr. Pitchford, as the director of student affairs, has many conferences with Mr. Lawrence, director of student activities. As a result of these conferences many changes have taken place, such as the addition of new courses and new concepts of dress codes. Mr. Pitchford has taken many steps to bridge the gap between the students and the administration since his position as assistant principal.

Sound Philosophy—Involvement and Logical Acceptance

Mr. Hines and Rev. Byrd meditate during an assembly.

Mr. Lambiotte shows a true concern for today's youth.

A view of total transition—Mr. Lawrence and students in smoking area.

Mr. Johnson always enjoys parents visiting Huntington.

Mr. Hines converses with Mr. Alston and Coach Travis.

Mrs. Love, Mr. Hines and Mr. Lambiotte discuss plans for the 1971 yearbook.

Mr. Hines discusses the purchasing of new adding machines for Huntington.

Mr. Thompson checks the identification card of Shelia Brown while Joseph Staton looks on.

Those Who Add to Equators' Success . . .

Mrs. Ashcraft--Secretary to Counselsors.

Mrs. Cameron--Data Processing Coordinator.

Mrs. James, secretary to the principal, has many responsibilities. Here Mrs. James is taking care of one of her many business transactions.

Mrs. Seabron, the filing clerk has the responsibility of assorting the mail and working with the attendance cards.

Mrs. Jordan, a new secretary, assists teachers in getting mimeographed materials, greets all persons entering the office with a smile and directs them to the proper places.

Mrs. Kea, the bookkeeper and clerk goes through her daily routine of recording the day's financial record.

Mrs. Cherry, secretary to Mr. Pitchford, is the attendance clerk for Huntington and has the same responsibilities as those in the general office.

Mr. Armstrong performs his duties well as our visiting teacher.

Guidance Paves the Way for a Balanced Life

MRS. WILSON--Today cooperation and understanding is essential for the transfer of knowledge. This is the principle that makes the relationship of Mrs. Wilson, director of the guidance department, and the students of Huntington successful in working toward the solution of many problems which face us throughout the year.

MRS. BLAND--Sophomore Counselor. Understanding is a necessity for Mrs. Bland who is the Sophomore class guidance counselor. Mrs. Bland understands the needs and desires of each sophomore, a quality which is unsurpassed as a guidance counselor. One of her major projects is "How to Reduce the Dropout Rate."

MR. HEARST--Ninth Grade Counselor. He believes guidance is essential for freshmen. Therefore, he spends many hours interpreting their aptitudes, interests and abilities thus, helping them make a start toward academic and social progress.

MRS. LIPSCOMBE--Junior Counselor. Mrs. Lipscombe is familiar with the atmosphere of Huntington and is acquainted with the many types of students who seek preparation for their education, vocations and careers at Huntington. Mrs. Lipscombe has a very close relationship with the junior and future senior classes; she is their advisor, friend and helper.

MISS SMITH--Eighth Grade Counselor. Each student who comes to Huntington in the eighth grade seeks to have his abilities developed and discovered. Miss Smith assists the eighth graders in reaching their ideals while helping them become familiar with the rules, regulations and invocations of Huntington High School.

MR. CARTER--Senior Guidance Counselor. Mr. Carter must be aware of changes and improvements from all phases of life that can better prepare the senior class for future responsibilities which will face them after graduation from Huntington High School.

ACADEMICS-- A NECESSITY TO COPE WITH A NEW LIFE CRITERION

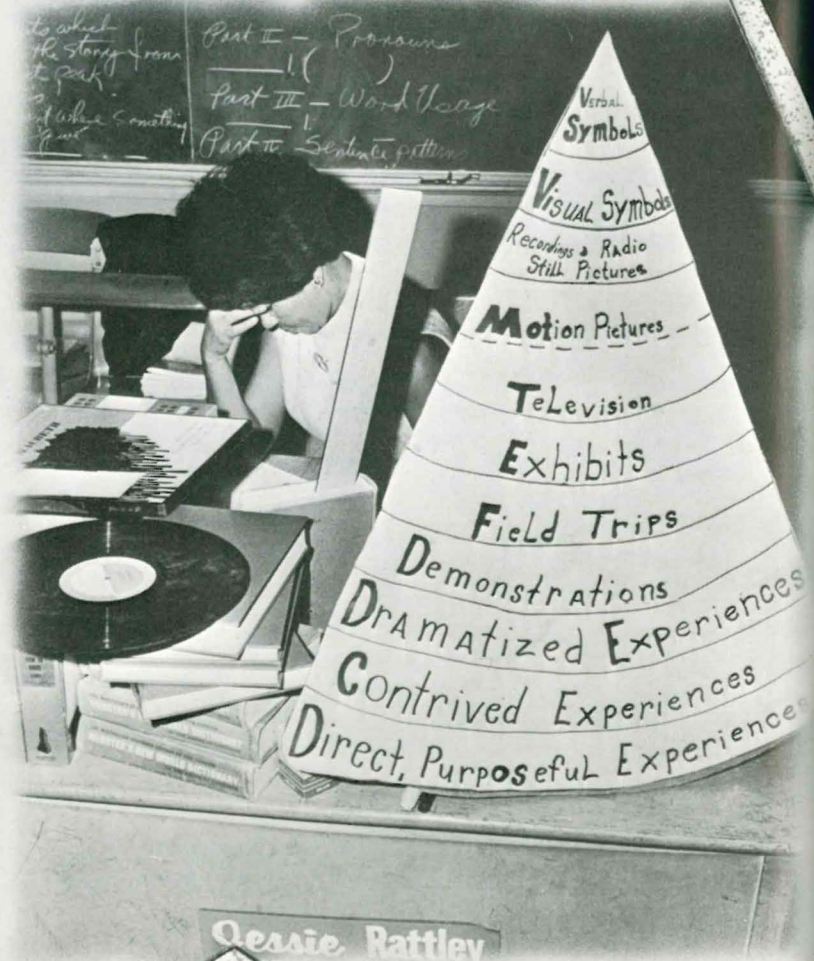

Continued humanization and the quality of life in our nation's future will be determined largely by the directions given to and the character developed by today's youth.

Hence, our faculty, realizing that we, the students of Huntington will grow up and operate the affairs of the world, play a paramount role in shaping us for the future.

Through their varied methods of instruction and guidance, we learn to discover and develop our abilities, to think creatively, to adapt to a technological environment, to maintain responsive and receptive attitudes toward change and to direct change in ways beneficial to humanity. Through our various academic involvement, we are made aware of the many impediments in our world and the necessity of our striving to contribute something to rid the nation of them.

Because of the constant and inevitable changes in our society, many of our faculty members live by the philosophy of Lee A. DuBridge: "The task of the teacher is not to complete the learning process but to start it; not to instill a fix body of knowledge; but to help the student understand the process of acquiring knowledge; not to encourage smugness in what the student has learned but to stimulate curiosity about what he must learn in the future."

If we, the youth of today, are to pick up the reins that slip from the hands of our adult leaders we too must be ever mindful of Lee A. DuBridge's words, for in a changing society the thirst and acquisition of knowledge must never end.

Mrs. Askew goes over a reading assignment with Deborah Hicks.

After giving introductory remarks for the day's T.V. show on Robert Frost, Mr. Calloway pushes the "on" button.

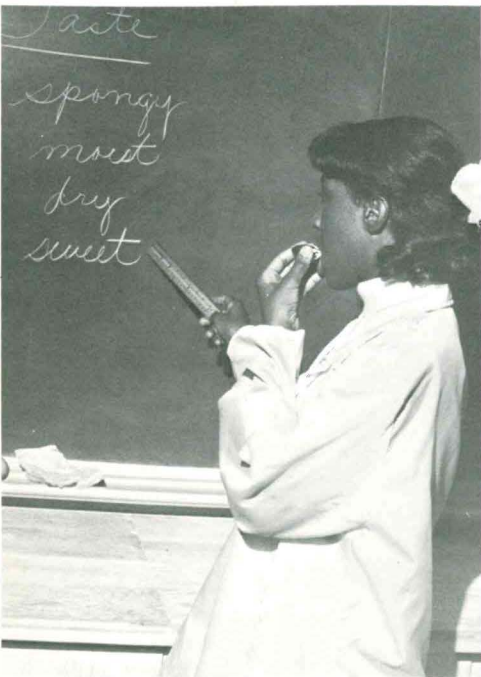

The vehicles for communication are no longer thought of as only the stroke of the pen, the printed page or the spoken word. Because of the fast pace that the world is traveling, these vehicles can no longer bear the whole burden of communication. Hence, each English instructor teaches innovative skills which stress multisensorial communication. These skills are taught through varied mass media --film, radio, T.V., tape recorders, etc., which according to some authorities are languages of their own, thus, requiring the mastery of specific skills. We also learn the skills necessary for understanding body language, which is prevalent in our culture today. It is with the mastery of these skills and the application of theory that lessons in grammar, compositional writing and literature become a reality.

Foreign Languages Mirrors

Alice Everette and Gloria Lee prove that they have learned their vocabulary for the day by preparing a display, "a tag on everything."

Donald Ward, Loraine McWilliams, Tracy Smith, and Patricia Jones study France independently by viewing a film strip.

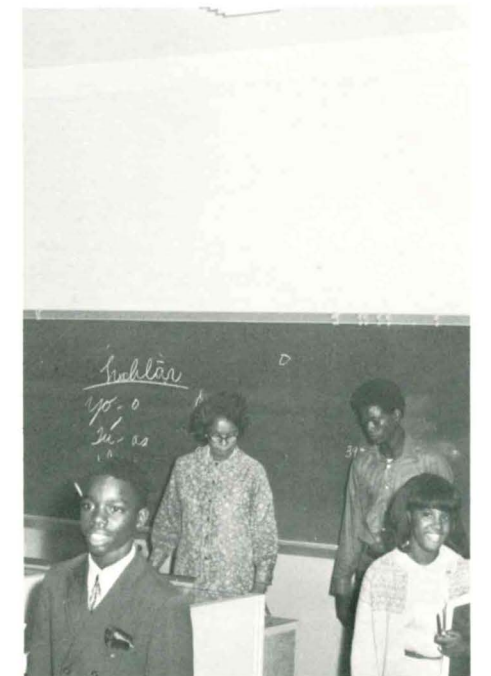

Jeion Joyner, Miss Foreign Language, prepares a show case with French productions and sites.

International Societies

Margaret Purcell does her task of setting the table for the dinner of French foods. Here it is; is it correctly done?

Through the study of Spanish and French we gain an understanding and appreciation of the institutions, and culture of these countries, also the language, the problems, customs, and industries. We become acquainted with the rich field of French and Spanish literature which mirror their society and we are made aware that "nothing contributes more to the understanding of other peoples than an acquaintance with their language." It adds an important element in fostering international good-will, friendship and sympathy which are the ingredients needed for world peace.

Social Science Reveals Man's

Realizing that the '71 would represent the forces of recession, problems relating to poverty, racial tension, war, student unrest and a high crime rate, our social science instructors formulated a course of study that would give each student a sense of awareness along with hope, a large measure of confidence, a need to be involved, and some possible means of how to find solutions to the problems facing the community, nation, and world.

Hence, each day through the study of geography, world history sociology, citizenship, Negro history, and government, we become aware of our plight and become better prepared to understand the world about us, and to search for answers to the prevailing problems.

Through the study of this bulletin board, students learn about their home state.

Art Display by Negro history students created excitement and interest. Students seen observing the display are Rita Stegall, Linwood Washington and Jenette Newby.

Habitat—Culture—Inhumanities

Gloria and Keith observe bulletin board in search for suggestions that may help in writing a term paper on world problems.

Possible Means for Solutions

Members of the government class participate in a panel discussion on the pros and cons of the United States' involvement in Viet Nam.

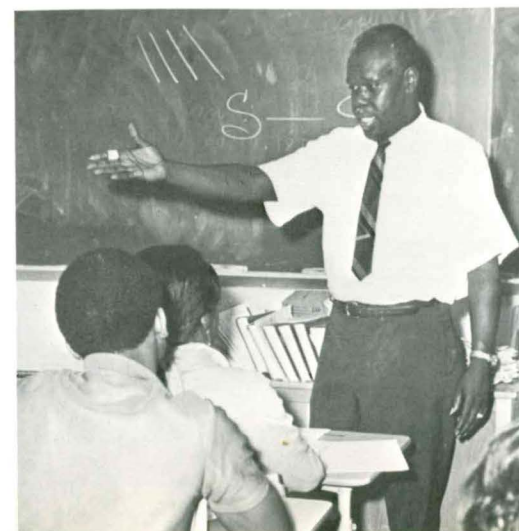

After a heated discussion, students often leave the class and dig for facts to cure their curiosity.

Calvin Craddock, Mr. Woods, and Mr. Boone observe and listen to the attorney as he answers questions asked by students.

Mr. Boone, The Assistant Commonwealth Attorney, and Mr. Tuberville discuss teenage problems and some possible means of solutions.

Starter question asked by the teacher can often lead to healthy discussions. This is typical of Mr. Turner's classes.

Immunization and Survival in a Technological and Computerized World

"Filling Out Income Tax Forms," is one of the main projects in Mr. Pleasant's Consumers Math class.

Automation speeded up by the computer revolution has made a knowledge of mathematics essential in our fight for survival as the world and modern technology move forward. Everywhere one turns he can see Mathematical techniques being used--by the housewives, by the doctors and nurses, by the lab technicians, by the scientists, by the buyers, and salesmen and so forth.

Our mathematics instructors being keenly aware of this, have devised a curriculum where-in, the students get a basic knowledge of a mathematics that helps them cope with their everyday living along with a more advanced mathematics which will enable them, with advanced training, to go into one of the vast and vital areas in mathematics, perhaps one of the areas still awaiting exploration.

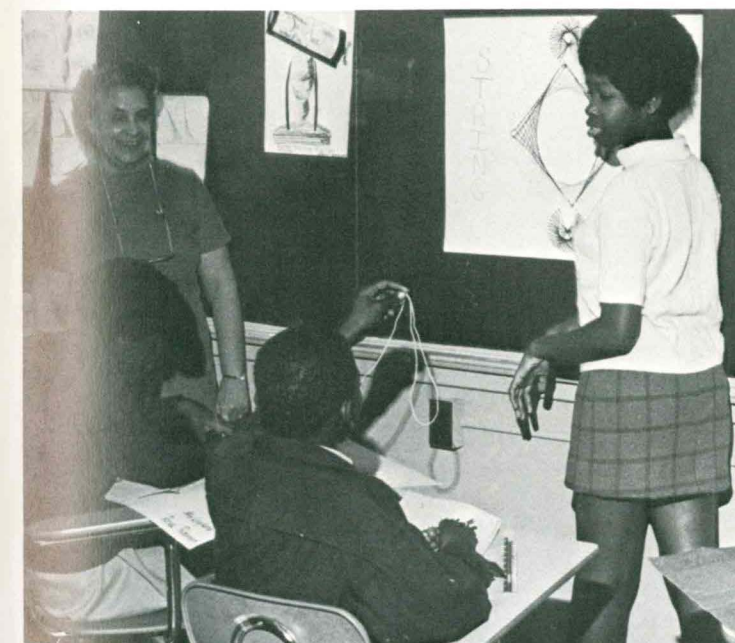

New methods are being used by the instructors to teach the necessary skills which make assignments and lessons a pleasure rather than a task.

Michael Coles is using a level to plumb his project.

With the blueprints of various constructions, it is the job of the industrial arts teacher to help students develop them into practical skills. The instructors' aims are accomplished through a diversified curriculum which produces visual examples of drafting, general metal work, masonry electronics, wood models, and power transportation. This training gives the student a knowledge of the influence of the Industrial Arts Program and the opportunities of employment available in our modern social and economic life.

Science: Explosion of Changes

D. Kelly, W. Moore, and D. Tymes conduct careful steps involved in purification of water.

Through Advancements in Science

The Science Program at Huntington High School provides the essential foundation for continued technological revolution. Traditionally, payoffs from successful research and its practical application was often a matter of decades. But rapid technological advancement has cured this to a great extent. Continued progress in this area depends upon students' "reservoir of knowledge," for the larger their reservoir of knowledge, the greater will be their chance to cope with a technological world and to contribute something to its well being.

Hence, the science curriculum is designed to meet the needs of each student in this light. It provides an opportunity for the "intake" of scientific knowledge by varied media, and offers students a chance to express themselves through projects, research, and experimentation.

As a result, they are able to transfer the knowledge gained to other courses, take advanced courses in science, and if desired go into one of the varied careers where scientific knowledge is a "must".

I.C.T.: Develops the Individual's Aptitudes and Abilities and Provides Futurized Opportunities

Mr. J. BAKER
ICT Coordinator

Classroom instruction is an important part of industrial training.

Students complete weekly progress sheets under the guidance of Mr. Baker.

Under the direction of Mr. Baker, Adrienne Jackson, James Pittman, and Althea Royal locate jobs that match their technological skills.

Davis Lee Goodwyn works skillfully as an auto painter at Hutchens Chevrolet.

Debra Owens performs her communicative task as Long Distance Operator at the C&P Telephone Company.

Horace Lee employed at Anthony's Barber College, puts into practice what he has learned about the art of cutting hair.

Betty Davis and Lindia Batten under the watchful eye of Mrs. Diggs perform their daily tasks of checking and recording data concerning the patients' health.

Today we are no longer in a "horse and buggy" society, but in an increasingly new and sophisticated age of technology. Recent innovation has made strictly conventional technology obsolete, and has combined the conventional with the transitional which has revolutionized man's thinking and performances, thus making it necessary for a greater "know-how" and "out put" student-wise.

Consequently, the growing complexity of technology and society, calls for more meaningful involvement, responsibility, challenge, and individuality. The Industrial Cooperative Training Program answers the students' cry by fostering the interaction through classroom training, part-time employment in the community, and skills that lead to greater advancement in the field.

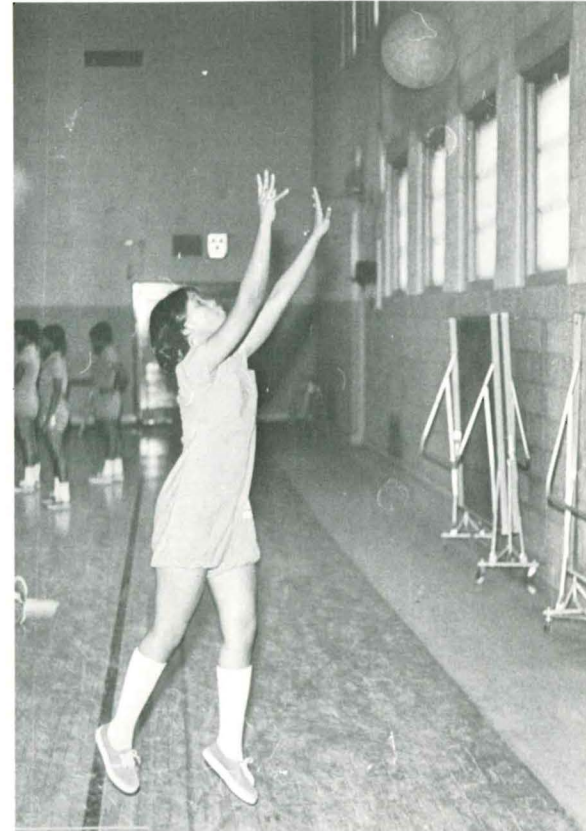

Classroom training provides the student with an opportunity to develop his individual abilities, and aptitudes through the study of the working conditions of the business world. In the community: the student is trained in the occupation of his choice, applies his acquired knowledge, and becomes more equipped for advanced training which paves the way to a career in the world of technology. Thus in the secondary educational curriculum, ICT is greatly needed for a life in our world of technology.

Rope climbing exercises --climbing and chinning the parallel bars--15 minutes of Calisthenics --jumping jacks--deep knee bends and leg raises, are all the activities that are common to physical education students at Huntington. It is through these and other varied activities that we learn to make-up for each of the physical activities needed in our daily living which we have been robbed of because of the energy-saving devices which advancement in technology has brought about.

We are ever mindful of the late President John F. Kennedy's words "But the harsh fact of the matter is that there is also an increasingly large number of young Americans who are neglecting their bodies --whose physical fitness is not what it should be--who are getting soft. And such softness on the part of the individual citizens can help to strip and destroy the vitality of a nation." Therefore, belonging to a generation that has been orientated as to the destruction that can be caused by the lack of physical activity, we enter our class each day eager to learn and to participate because, as future leaders of America we strive to enlighten a world of darkness.

Through the physical education program, we also learn the importance of physical fitness in driving.

Students To Cope with an Automated Society

Cynthia Coleman takes a last glance at the typewriter before going into the computerized world of business.

Everywhere we turn today we seem to run into computers by way of stiff paper with a notation "Do not bend, staple, or mutilate."

The Business and Office Education Department is constantly updating its curriculum offerings to meet students' needs in an automatic society. Much of today's business activities center around automated data processing and associated equipment. With block classes gradually appearing in the limelight, business courses are designed to train students for the cluster of jobs in office occupations and to help students understand the office environment in which automated data processing equipment is used, exposing them to the associated terminology, processes, and effects.

Our business students are involved in data processing in bookkeeping, record keeping, stenography, typewriting, clerical office practice, VOT, and even general business. The data processing course provides an extension of these courses, showing the students how the data they are already learning to process is handled, whether by manual, mechanical, punched card, or computer methods.

Home Economics Perpetuates

From the time of the prehistoric cave dwellings to the times of the modern prefabricated homes, the home has been the center of man's life. Through the ages the changing generations have crossed oceans, toiled over mountains, and pushed westward seeking new nonexpendable homes to love and cherish. It is in the home that thoughtful deeds, beauty of character, trained citizens and future homemakers originate.

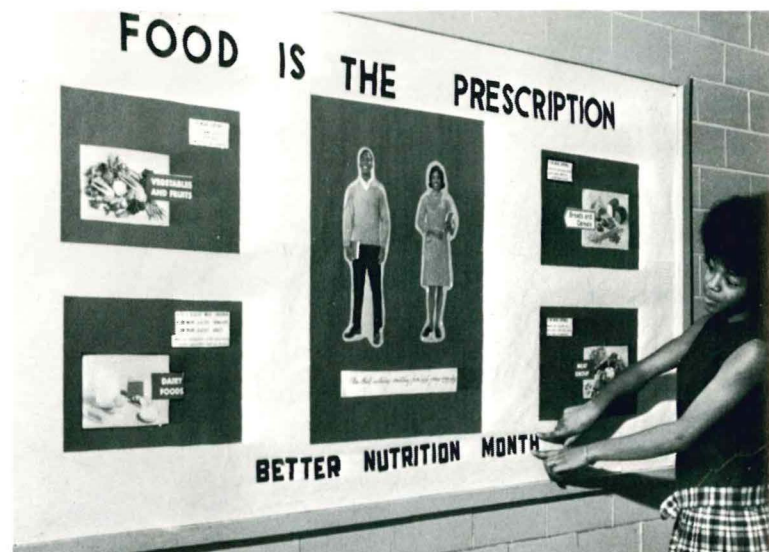

Without proper management and organization the home becomes an expendable structure bounded only by its walls. The Home Economics department trains students to meet the requirements of the home through cooking, sewing, home management, and home planning courses. In Home Economics, students are taught the importance of cleanliness, and energy conservation, thus making Home Economics essential for life in a changing world.

D.E. Develops Skills in

The Distributive Education program prepares the student for entry into the world of marketing, distribution, and work. It is designed to provide students with on-the-job training in areas of business for future development. D.E. is considered the backbone for those planning to continue their knowledge in this field at a higher level after graduation, and good experience for those who plan to go into another area. Skill development, growth of knowledge, good experience, all contribute to the success of the program of Distributive Education. Mr. Venable, D.E. Coordinator, guides and places each student where he thinks he can best produce and show his skills.

The course is divided into three years: the first year consisting of a one hour period daily for classroom instruction, and the second and third year consisting of a one hour period of daily instruction, and a block of time devoted to supervised on-the-job training.

Nourishment—Cleanliness and Good Health Influence the Learning Process

ACTIVITIES-- TRANSMITTERS OF LEARNING

Survival in a world of war . . . racism . . . pollution . . . youth unrest . . . protest . . . change? How? One of the slogans which contributes to answering the question most is, GET INVOLVED.

Participation in various extracurricular activities is one avenue that we as future leaders travel to learn to be involved and the meaning of the word which is a "must" and is most significant to man's survival--teamwork. Since the beginning of man's existence, it has been his ability as a team that has caused the wheel of progress to turn.

The need for this ideology continues even today in a world that is headed toward dehumanization and in a world where many are beginning to believe that gradually, automation will be the solver of man's problems and will replace his responsibilities.

Participation in various activities serve as a training ground where we learn that while automation is an asset to man, there is doubt that it will ever replace man's responsibilities, and solve all man's problems--hence leaving with man the necessity of human "togetherness".

Being involved in extracurricular activities also has such end results as: "reinforcing classroom learning, supplementing formal studies, adding to total life adjustment, integrating learning, and democratizing school and American life"--all so vitally needed if we, the youth of today, are to help conquer the frontiers that lie ahead.

Through participation in extracurricular activities--"We sow a thought and reap an action."

Activities Reflect

Mrs. Grandberry, SCA sponsor, talks with two judges at Youth Day Activities sponsored by Denbigh Exchange Club.

Youth for Life

Stimulating a respect and ambition for higher scholastic attainment, stressing the spirit of service, learning the "how" and necessity for long-range planning, creating a desire for and the maintenance of high moral standards, encouraging cooperation and participation in all school activities, stressing the need for developing leadership and intelligent fellowship and insuring a spirit of democracy describe the work exemplified by the members of Huntington's SCA.

Our work is a testimonial sense of our awareness that experience and training in government here at Huntington will assist us and our fellow Huntingtonians in carrying out our adult responsibilities and meeting the challenges which face our generation, making possible an existence in a world that will not be further dehumanized but much more humanized--peace instead of war, brotherly love instead of Hate--harnessing of energy for constructive means rather than destructive means . . .

SCHOLARSHIP: "The key door to countless beautiful and valuable experiences, enriching one's own life and the lives of others . . ."

Junior Honor Society Members--C. Brock, L. Walker, T. Smith, P. Jennings, D. Ward, and D. Stephenson.

Daily, we the members of the Honor Society strive to create an enthusiasm for scholarship, to stimulate a desire to render service, to promote leadership and to develop character in fellow Huntingtonians.

We bear forward the searching light of truth; we lead in hope that others may follow in the light and keep burning in our school a high ambition for the enduring values of life. We push forward with the hope that our lives may be kept true to the highest ideas of mankind. We believe the four ideals of our society serve as aids in helping to meet the challenges in this chaotic world.

SERVICE: "The world is full of self-will, self-justification, and self-love which are the foundations of the world's ills. Today the world needs individuals who can rise above the tides and the times and serve both God and man unselfishly."

Freedom—Expression—Creativity—Produce Productivity

Through classroom training students have learned that art is one of the strongest agencies which has power to influence the conceptions, the attitudes, the ways and manners of peoples. It can be a mighty element for civic betterment and a powerful educational factor. Hence, when members of the Art Club attend meetings and plan activities, minds are fired, emotions evoked and imaginations stirred. Thus, resulting projects and activities develop within each individual personal self-esteem and prove to be rewarding. The club sponsors such activities as: the sale of various craft and art, items which they make, and dances for the purpose of providing scholarships for art students and giving financial aid for students who attend special summer enrichment workshops.

The Science Club members look on as Mr. Howard illustrates the proper procedures for looking through the telescope.

Science Club

Stressing the importance of Science, strengthening interest in it, providing an opportunity to challenge, and searching for a new "break through" are the main objectives of the Science Club. Curiosity . . . Inquisition . . . and Exploration describe the members of the club. Hence, the club provides activities that help students put into daily living the skills learned through classroom experience. The application of these principles cause students to take a new look at old things and it stimulates a desire for new "makings" in order to escape.

Members of the Science Club plan for a scientific future through research and experimentation.

Members of Debating Society: M. Purcell, S. Lynch, L. Brown, C. Harris, C. Harrell, H. Ashlock.

Studies in social sciences fires knowledge expansion concerning national and international problems for members of the Social Studies Club. The sparking of interest associated with the club can be compared to the source of a river that is eager as ever to be on its way. The members are constantly planning activities that will inspire a better living for a better world. Hence, in their help for the under-privileged of today, the club adopted a young girl from Hong Kong, China through the Christian Children's Fund. Through sponsored activities the club raises funds each month for the support of the child's education. The club finds that this is a very rewarding project.

F.H.A. Pinpoints Home Beautification

The Future Homemakers of America, a national organization, serves as a medium through which young ladies in junior and senior high school may put into practice the many facets of economics that were learned in the classroom. These facets are essential to running a stable home. Fostering the development of creative leadership in home and community life, providing wholesome individual and community recreation, emphasizing the importance of worthy home membership are only a few of the many objectives of the F.H.A. Some activities sponsored by the F.H.A. were: Valentine Card Sale, distribution of a Thanksgiving basket and a Christmas Basket to a needy family.

Meal Preparation and Party Ideas

Knowledge Explosion Can be Contagious— Let's Start an Epidemic

The library is not only a research center which is a repository of facts to be found, swallowed and forgotten after exam but a cultural and social center, and a hospital for curing curiosity. The members of the Library Club help make this possible to a large extent by implementing varied programs and the presentation of book reviews. By exhibiting arts and crafts, displaying new books, and preparing bulletin boards, the members of the Library Club try to indoctrinate Huntingtonians with the idea of "Thinking of a library as a wide and unlimited curriculum guided by a "faculty".

Use of Leisure Stirs Students to Action . . .

The Hobby Club encourages students to use their leisure time wisely. Under the supervision of Mr. Ralph McGhee, the Hobby Club provides a host of opportunities in a relaxed atmosphere for its members to apply their skills in the art of photography. Their various activities provide learning experiences in such areas as taking photographs, film developing and color processing.

Raising money to buy "toys for tots", students place their votes at one cent each at the baby contest booth, sponsored by the Keyettes.

After a hearty response from the student body, Sheryl Mann shops in a local toy store.

Promoters of Culture and Good Grooming

Recognizing the necessity of becoming a well informed, well rounded individual, the Girls' and Boys' Culture Clubs have as their goals excellence in scholarship, and character. Each strives to create an interest and awareness of world affairs, community problems and the fine arts.

Throughout 1970-71 by living up to its primary goals, the Girls' Culture Club has: DISPLAYED community interest by presenting a skit to the children's ward of nearby hospitals, presenting a program to patients of one of the community nursing homes and by donating food baskets to needy families; EXHIBITED interests in world affairs by obtaining signatures for the release of Prisoners of War; STROVE to make individuals conscious of the importance of personal appearance by sponsoring a dress right week, a workshop to promote grace and refinement in young ladies, and a fashion show; PROMOTED an interest in the fine arts by attending a drama festival in Williamsburg, Va., attending plays at the theater, and assisting in the presentation of a program on Fine Arts Day.

Health Careers Club

Miss Deborah Anderson, State Director of Health Careers of Richmond, Va., was guest speaker at Huntington's Health Careers Club assembly which was held in December.

Dread of pain . . . alleviation from human suffering . . . hope for a balm. Just as these conditions and desires stimulated an interest in great men and women of yester-years to enter health careers to love, serve and save mankind so is it continuing to do. The Health Careers Club at Huntington is made up of students who exemplify this. Their activities are illustrative of the belief that through the contribution of great men and women, our world will become a more prosperous and meaningful one. The Health Careers Club's activities included this year: installation Program, Christmas project for children, learning experience trip at Riverside Hospital, and an assembly program sponsoring the director of Health Careers from Richmond, Virginia.

Mrs. M. Robinson, the Sponsor of the Health Careers Club, and Wanda Starke stop to chat with one of the children at the cerebral palsy center where the members gave a Christmas program and toys.

Mirror Human Experiences

Helen Corry, Richard Brown, Nancy Cutchin and Willie Beverly are in the final stages of rehearsal for "The Typists" and "The Tiger".

"Pink and Patches" is the name of the play and Patricia Dale, Catherine Wilkins and Brenda Stancil are members of the cast.

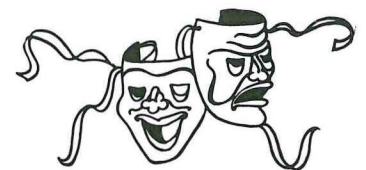

"Explaining life through the Dramatic Arts" was the theme of the Drama Club. The members of this club experienced happiness, anger, love, hate, and many more human emotions. "Working with the Drama Club made me overcome my shyness " says one very hard working young lady. This was only one of the many good comments expressed by members of the club. The plays presented this year were: "The Typist", "The Tiger", "In White America", "Pink and Patches", and "Death of a Salesman".

The Drama Club presented "The Tiger" at the Drama Festival and received a rating of good.

The Drama students had several opportunities to see semi-professional acting companies--"The Man from La Mancha", and "The Roar of the Grease Paint".

Drama students prepare for the Production "In White America". Brenda, Helen, Nancy, Patricia, Kenneth, Brenda, Richard and Sarah.

Cheerleaders and Pep Club Inspire Vikings

J.V. cheerleaders in the bleachers help the varsity cheerleaders during a game.

"LET ME TELL YOU 'BOUT THE VIKINGS, YEAH, YEAH, THEY'RE THE BEST IN THE LAND, YEAH, YEAH, AIN'T NO QUESTION ABOUT IT, YEAH, YEAH, THEY GOT SOUL WHERE THEY STAND, YEAH, YEAH . . . "represents the voice of the Pep Club being led by the cheerleaders. They constitute the backbone of Huntingtonians' school spirit. During the week of a game, members of the Pep Club can be seen and cheerleaders can be heard learning new cheers and steps. Each group eagerly looks to the 7th period the day of the game so that they can "do their thing" at the pep rally held for the student body, in order to bolster a pre-game spirit.

MOULDERS OF FUTURE LEADERS

Members of the Lillian Weaver Chapter of the Future Teachers of America, through their various activities, stress the importance and the indispensable role of the teachers--"The key to a successful school system for America"--and encourage capable students to aspire to a position in the teacher educational program.

It is the future teacher who will be the future strengthener of the nation, the future supplier of what is required in order for a technological society to cope with change and the critical problems facing it--national and international--and the future moulders of tomorrow's leaders. It is the Future Teachers who will set free the restless soul of youth.

Hence, as Future Teachers of America, we firmly believe that our nation will not continue to move ahead unless there is quality education which requires quality teachers. Therefore, each year we sponsor programs during American Education Week to emphasize the importance of education.

The Big Five

Huntington's Cross Country team in its third year of existence chalked up a 4--2 record under the tutelage of first year coach, Joseph Spencer. This is the first year a Viking Cross Country Team has been able to finish a season with a winning record. This year's team consisted of: Senior; Keith Witherspoon, Juniors; Fred Whitehead, Clinton Bell, Daniel Copeland, Stanley Copedge, Ronald Ray, Harry Watson, and James Hargraves, Sophomore; Glenn Williams, Freshmen; Daniel Coleman, Jay Vees; David Lynch, Reginald Slade, and Manager; Ronald Willis.

Losing only one member of his top five, Keith Witherspoon to graduation, Coach Spencer is anxiously awaiting next year's cross country season. "Daniel Coleman, a freshman should be ready to take Witherspoon's place. This year's team stars should shine even brighter next year. We should really be strong next year," says coach Spencer.

Varsity Basketball

V-I-C-T-O-R-Y or D-E-F-E-A-T depended this year upon all the players' use of sound judgment, common sense, and the spirit of cooperation among the team members. The games were strenuous, exhausting, and often injurious--fortunately, not many for the players--and for the coach it was tense, emotional, and nerve wracking.

The Mighty Vikings gained a record that sent them to the V-H-S-L play-off where they were defeated by Warwick 54--53.

Vikings Capture Third Place—State 1971 Indoor Track Team

In its third year of existence, Huntington's Indoor Track Team began to show the fruits of its labor. The 1970 Outdoor Eastern Regional Champions compiled a dual meet record of 3 wins and 1 loss.

Our explosive Mile Relay Team shattered the district record by 6 seconds in 3.39; Keith Witherspoon and Wallace Hawkins placed 1--2 in the long jump, Robert Burrest, third in the shot put. The 880 Relay Team placed 3rd in the high hurdles and in the lows 2nd, the team placed 3rd in the District Meet with 21 points behind Denbigh's 41 and Bethel's 22. Even better things were in store for the Viking "Thin-clads" as Keith Witherspoon won the Triple Jump, Robert Burrest captured third in shot put. The 880 relay team took second and the mile relay team broke the state record of 3.28.6 with a blistering 3.27.5 to capture third place with 19 points in the state meet, behind Denbigh's 28 and First Colonial's 21.

Tennis

As the 1971 Huntingtonian goes to press, Coach Davis is getting into shape the members of the tennis team. Fans are awaiting to get a thrill from the whizzing sound of the tennis racquet and their anticipations soar high in predicting the 1971 results.

Junior Varsity

"It matters not whether you win or lose, but how you played the game." These words apply to the J.V. Football squad. It gave the boys game experience and a knowledge of football fundamentals--a training camp for future varsity players.

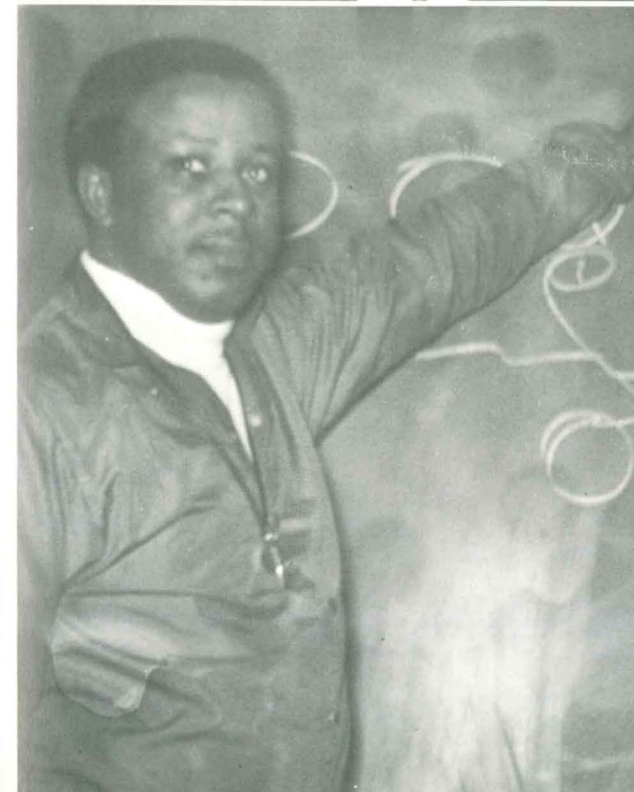

According to Huntington's Coach Hartman, a number of the J.V.'s are good prospects for next year's varsity squad.

FRONTIERSMEN OF A NEW ERA

"As Night begins the day, Yesterday begins Tomorrow." Hence having reached the end of an epoch--graduation from high school in an era where there is a realization of inevitable change--"internal political change and revolution, change in international political relations and change in the economic, social, education, technical and living standards of our society," we, frontiersmen in a new era, stand crying, "Change need not contribute to a "dying world" but can be the salvation for a new and more prosperous world if the great masters will but harness the resources that are available, tying together the traditional with the transitional--if they will but supply the needs for us, the future leaders of America, and realize that ours is more unique than any past generation's. Through the study of a varied curriculum, participation in extra-curricular activities and community involvement, many of us have found the answer to the question--Why am I living? We realize that there are endless frontiers to conquer--pollution--war--human injustices--poverty--drug abuse-- . . . It is through us, the youth, that many of these will be conquered.

As we depart from Huntington's walls we enter into a new arena of life that is limitless in its extent and boundless in its possibilities. We will be ever mindful of the words of Bertrand Russel.

"I may have thought the road to a world of free and happy human beings shorter than it is proving to be, but it is worth while to live in thinking that it is worth while to live with a view to bringing it nearer. . . . These things I believe, and the world, for all its horrors, has left me unshaken."

To the Graduating Class of 1971

Dear Graduates:

For each of you, I wish the very best that life can offer. The things that have happened here are now history, only to be recorded as events you experienced at Huntington High School. To those of you who helped make the history, these years will hold a deeper meaning and you will revive and recapture their essence often.

It is my feeling that some member of your class will achieve distinction in life and do the things that people proclaim great.

It is my hope that each of you will perform the small day-by-day responsibility in a great way and that you will find happiness in doing well whatever you have to do.

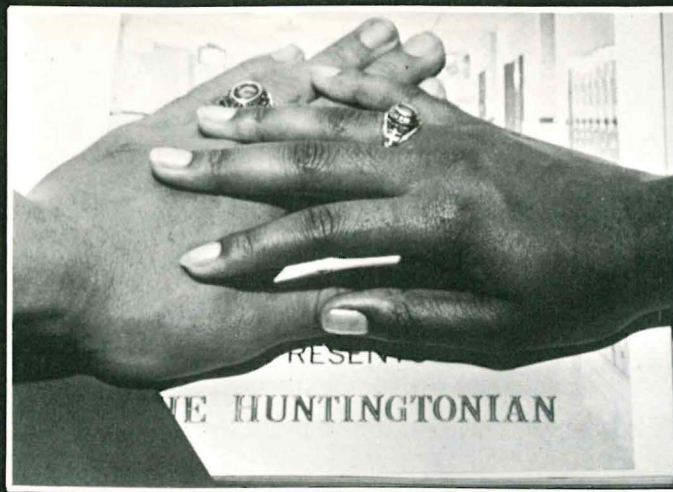

If you do your very best as you perform all of your responsibilities, large and small, you will fulfill our greatest hope for you.

Sincerely yours,

ADVENTURERS PURSUE HIGHER HORIZONS

By the way of ambition, faith, understanding, friendliness and courage, we learned to adjust to a new environment--a more advanced school life. Because of the restlessness that face us daily in a world of turmoil, we search for higher and more prosperous horizons.

We move forward,--striving--in hope to contribute to the removal of the impediments that plague our "dying world."

There is a call to adventure which comes from deep within and it must be answered and it can, to a great extent, if we learn the meaning of sympathy, character, truth, and influence and to utilize available intellectuality.

The words of great men and our daily academic and other encounters give much "food-for-thought" and "lead-way" toward this end.

Sympathy is the first great lesson which man should learn. But unless he learns to feel for things in which he has no personal interest, he can achieve nothing generous or noble.--Talfourd

All human virtues increase and strengthen themselves by the practice and experience of them.--Socrates

Honesty of thought and speech and the written word is a jewel, and they who curb prejudice are the only builders of a better life.--John Galsworthy

No man or woman of the humblest sort can really be strong, gentle and pure and good, without the world being better for it, without somebody being helped and comforted by the very existence of that goodness.--Phillip Brooks

Dwight Spratley, President, and Mrs. Archer, Junior Sponsor discuss Prom plans.

Frustrations—Questions, world conditions and the quest to seek out the unknown inspires, us the Junior class, to prepare to meet the challenges of our day. Through daily classroom experiences, extracurriculum participation and community involvement we have developed an inquiring mind—one which holds that everything and anything can be improved. Therefore, we seek ways to meet the various challenges and to establish a balance between the pressures we live midst and ourselves. We realize that "our actions in the present touch our lives in the future." The establishment of world peace and brotherhood among mankind is our goal—the salvation for continued humanization.

The sophomore class presented the Christmas Assembly which instilled in fellow schoolmates an early Christmas spirit.

As Sophomores meet to make plans for the Christmas Assembly, suddenly Valerie Trusdale has an idea.

push us, the freshman class, forward to cope with a world
of endless frontiers . . .
Like an athlete preparing for a major sport event, we prepare in body and mind for the powerful experiences of tomorrow's world.
Time yet to come . . .

A Recollection of People

We, the members of the 1971 Graduating Class have a recollection of two who stand out very vividly and whose stay like ours terminated at Huntington High in 1971. We wish to have them--one who labored so diligently in the vineyard of education for our cause--the other who laughed with us, suffered through classes and other disasters with us and labored with a common interest toward a common goal until she departed to the "Great Beyond"--recorded in our chest of memories, for we shall always be joined in heart and spirit.

A Master Teacher Among Teachers . . .

With a principle that has elevated him in the hearts of the members of the Huntington Family, Mr. M. C. Calloway has left an indelible imprint upon the annals of the history of educational benefactors of his race. Many Huntingtonians were recipients of his guidance, inspiration and imparted knowledge.

Mr. Calloway, a native of Union Spring, Alabama, attended Morgan State College Academy; he received his B.A. degree from Howard University in 1942; M.A. from Columbia University. Mr. Calloway has been active in the educational world for 42 years. He has taught at Huntington for 28 years, was senior class sponsor for 25 years, head of the English Department for 12 years and a member of N.N.E.A., V.E.A. and N.E.A. --educational organization.

Community-wise, he is affiliated with the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity and a member of First Baptist Church--23rd and Jefferson Avenue.

We, the members of the 1971 graduating class, wish for you a most enjoyable retirement.

The prophecy, "THE GOOD MEN DO LIVE AFTER THEM"--is amply fulfilled.

Florence Marie Floyd

"To live in the Hearts

We leave Behind

is not to die"

If this year is to be remembered for any one thing in the lives of the students of Huntington High, it will be surely remembered as the year that Florence did not spend with the class of '71. We shall always remember her for the fond memories which she has given us. In appreciation of these memories, We, the members of Homeroom 215, and the rest of the senior class seek to honor Florence in some way. We, the class of '71, dedicate to Florence Marie Floyd our fondest memories.

'71 Graduating Class

From Research Resignation to

A yearbook is more than a mere collection of pictures and isolated sentences and paragraphs. It is a printed pictorial story of each graduate's five years of high school life. Therefore, it must be constructed with consistency and continuity which requires the life and breath of months of planning and work by devoted members.

Consequently, our yearbook room was the scene of many long hours of laboring, the throwing away of layout sheets--revising others--and the tearing out of hair. In capsule form, it was the scene of many frustrating moments.

However, in March, we triumphantly sent the last part of the book to the press with a sigh of relief, realizing that in spite of the frustrating moments publishing the 1971 Huntingtonian was both enjoyable and rewarding.

Staff members attentively listen as Mrs. Love, annual adviser, gives the correct procedure in preparing copy.

Sharon Bryant and Sharon Hobbs listen attentively as Mrs. Love lectures on procedures for getting started on the 1971 Huntingtonian.

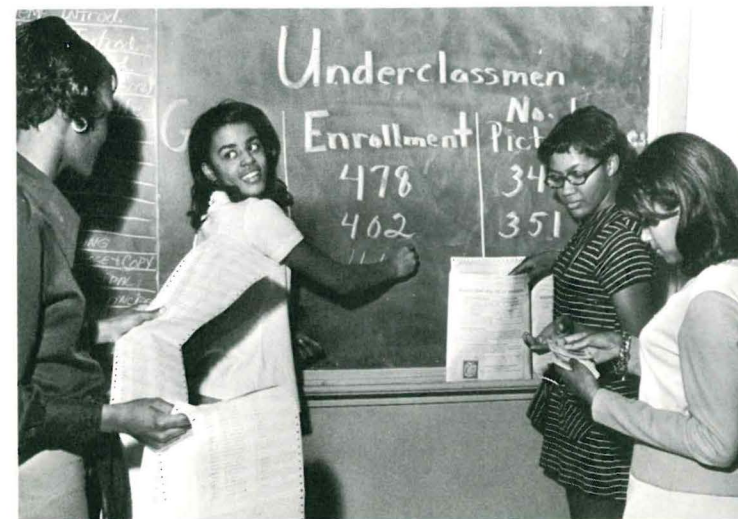

Mrs. Love explains to Linda Hawkins procedures in placing symbols on ads while George White skillfully draws a layout.

Copy fitting is an important and tedious task.

Trial and Error Tribulations to Deadline Dedication

Assisted by George White, Patrice Terrell busily crops appropriate pictures for various sections in the annual, while Roy Mason looks on.

Paulette Jones, Margaret Purcell, Sharon Hobbs, and Sharon Bryant tally the student pictures according to enrollment.

Patrice and Gwendolyn prepare the ladder diagram for the 1971 Huntingtonian.

Carolyn and Chavis search for additional information while Calvin draws the final layout sheet.

Performing one of their daily tasks, the yearbook typists alphabetize the patrons' list.

Nathaniel, Abraham, and Milton solicit advertisements to help finance the cost of the annual.

Patrice and Rufus return to the annual room after a hectic day of photography assignments.

We Look Toward the Future

As we, the members of the 1971 graduating class, leave Huntington's walls, we enter into a new arena of life, A world of challenges, A world of dares. Each of us enters with this belief:

Acknowledgments

The 1971 Huntingtonian staff is the product of many hours of tiresome, generous volunteered work by students and adviser whose efforts are largely unsung until the book arrives, yet this work comprises the only permanent record of this year and will remain a tribute to our efforts. To Mr. R. M. Hines, principal, and to all others who helped to make the 1971 Huntingtonian a success, thank you and best wishes, for without your support it would have been impossible.

NEWPORT NEWS. WE'VE LAUNCHED MORE THAN 500 SHIPS.

But wait 'til you see our encore. When we started out in 1886, we were just a small ship repair yard. We named the company Newport News. Because we were proud to be doing business here.

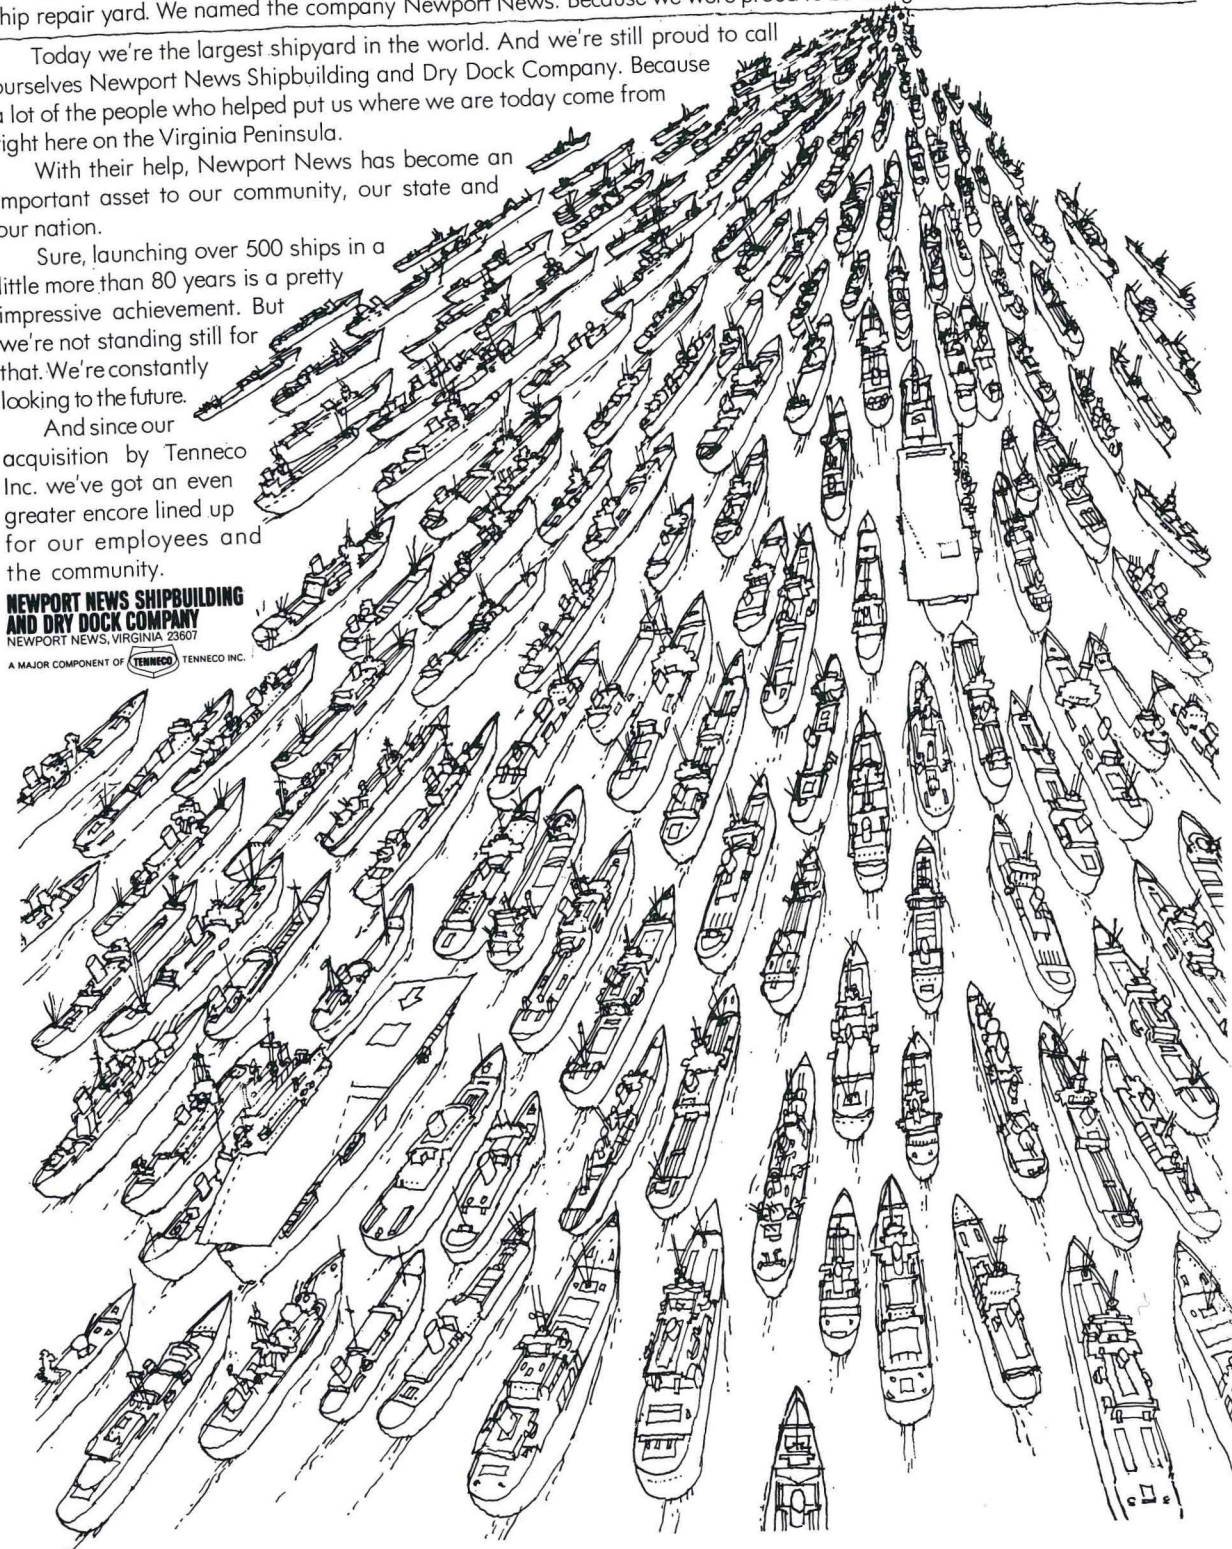

Today we're the largest shipyard in the world. And we're still proud to call ourselves Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company. Because a lot of the people who helped put us where we are today come from right here on the Virginia Peninsula.

With their help, Newport News has become an important asset to our community, our state and our nation.

Sure, launching over 500 ships in a little more than 80 years is a pretty impressive achievement. But we're not standing still for that. We're constantly looking to the future.

And since our acquisition by Tenneco Inc. we've got an even greater encore lined up for our employees and the community.
